What are sea-beans anyway?

Sea-beans are seeds from tropical rain forests and islands. They can drift with ocean currents for years before washing up on land.

Believe in the magic!

Legends say that sea-beans are magical. Beachcombers often wonder why they are drawn to these mysterious messengers from faraway places. Sea-beans travel the ocean currents along with other drifters -- sea turtles, seaweed, message in bottles rafts, corks, sea glass, toys from ship spills, and Unidentified Floating Objects. Bring your beach treasures to the symposium for identification help.

Who are the Drifters?

The Drifters are beachcombers, surfers, park rangers, naturalists, teachers, oceanographers, artists, scientists, authors, and anyone interested in beach and ocean life. Each year, we gather to exchange information at this symposium, and three times per year publish The Drifting Seed newsletter. Join us! Donations are welcome to help keep the Drifters afloat.
